

BIOGRAPHY

UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

CAPTAIN DYLAN J. TOOTLE

Captain Tootle is a Cybersecurity Engineer at Cyber Threat and Vulnerability Interdiction, 75th Intelligence Squadron, Fort George G. Meade, Maryland. He leads cybersecurity assessments evaluating critical DoD weapons systems vulnerabilities to cyber threats and advising DoD leadership on defense recommendations. Additionally, he leads a team of 10 Airmen and Officers in chartering a strategic survey of a $10 Billion USAF rapid prototyping weapon system, and delivering technical reports that quantify and prioritize threat-based cyber vulnerabilities.

Captain Tootle received his commission and began active duty in May 2017 as a graduate of the Florida State University Reserve Officer Training Corps. He has held various acquisitions and leadership assignments at the Phillips Research Site (PRS), Air Force Research Laboratory (AFRL), and at the 7th and 75th Intelligence Squadrons supporting the National Security Agency. He performed duties as a Deputy Program Manager, Project Manager, and Simulation Lab Manager during his post at PRS and has conducted field testing on novel Small Business Innovative Research (SBIR) technology in their applications to combat personnel. He has also served as a Flight Commander for the 7th Intelligence Squadron and as a Division Chief at the National Security Agency, leading a group of over 40 joint military, civilian, and contractor personnel.
